5 A0

The diagram shows a perspective view of the A1 component, which is a rectangular plate with a grid of circular holes. A separate A0 component, which is a small rectangular plate with a central circular hole, is shown being placed into one of the holes of the A1 component. An arrow points from the A0 component to the hole in the A1 component.

The diagram illustrates the application of sealant to a roof edge. A circular callout labeled 'A0' points to a wavy line representing the sealant being applied to the edge of a roof. Another circular callout labeled 'A10' points to the same area, indicating the specific product used for this step.
